HORRIBLE MASSACRE AT MUKDEN

Twenty-one Rebels Tortured and Put to Death by Imperialists

ATTEMPT ASSASSINATION

Of Leader of Imperial Forces at Tien Tsin--Terrorism Rules China Today.

Pekin, Jan. 27.—With the throne vacillating between abdication and an attempt to rally the still loyal troops to eppose the republicans, massacre and terrorism rule China today. Twenty-one members of the revolutionary council at the attempt of the revolutionary council at the atternoon. She stepped into the beheaded them in the street as a warning against sedition. An unknown revolutionist threw a smoking hand grenade at General Chaug Hua The leader of the imperial forces at Tien. Tsin Only, the fact that it falled to explode as soon as it struck the ground prevented the officer being blown to pieces.

Liang Pi, a prominent Manchu statesman who has counseled the imperial clan against abdication, was probably fatally injured foday when a bomb was hurled at his carriage as he was returning from a conference with Prince Ching, the former premier who Yuan Shi Kai succeed-

Reports from imperial garrisons all over the north say the troops are on the verge of mutiny and that they will not oppose the republican army unless they are given their pay, now three months overdue.

The lack of loyalty among the soldiers was regarded as an omonous sign by the older members of the imperial clan and they have renewed their efforts to get the other members to consent to abdication. The belief was general that China was rapidly drifting into anarchy. Unless peace was soon restored, it was beheved that foreign intervention was

The massacre at Mukden was one tory. The hands of the president of the revolutionary conference were hacked off, his eyes gouged out with bayonets, and he was chopped to pieces in the sight of his comrados. One by one the other members of the society were subjected to similar treatment. The bodies were then corded upon the sidewalk and a placard pinned to the bleeding forms. warning all Chinese that they would meet a similar fate if they attempted to encourage the revolution.

A dispatch late today from Tien Tsin reported that the would-be as sasin of General Chang Hai Tze had been captured. He is reported to have confessed and implicated three oth

Yesterday and today's bomb rages are believed to be but the forerunner of a campaign of death to be waged by the revolutionist party. The most prominent imperial officers and members of the cabinet are being selected for attack by the rebels who make no effort to keep their identity a sceret. An agent declared that during a conference recently With Yuan Shi Kai he had promised him to release a number of the dynamiters already jailed.

Mr. Palmer took the position that the steel industry had grown to such proportions that it did not need protection, and that under protection it had stitled its competitors. He quoted Andrew Carnegie as saying only recently that there was no longer and necessity for a protective duty on steel products, and comparing that with what Charles W. Schwab had stated at about the state of time, that there was still necessity for protection. He declared that the statement of one was that of a man who had made his pile, while the other was from a man who was still sharing in dividends and had not yet reached the coupon-clipping stage.

Takes Blame from Col. Harvey and States Ryan Story Was Started to Make Wilson a Hero.

Washington, Jan. 27. - Large sums of money for the purpose aiding the presidential canvass of Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey were sought from Thomas Fortune Ryan, the millionaire, by Henry Watterson, the Louisville. Ky., editor, while he was working in Wilson's behalf. This was disclosed when Mr. Watterson made public certain letters which had been exchanged by himself and Senator B. R. Tillman of South Carolina.

Watterson had been taken to task by Tillman for not giving the material facts in regard to the break between Watterson and Col. George Harvey on the one hand and Governor Wilson on the other. Watterson says that the story has been circulated with the knowledge of Governor Wilson that the reason Wilson broke with Harvey was that Ryan had been asked for belp. Watter-son declares, on the other hand, that he himself had sought aid from Ryan and that when the millionaire's name was suggested to Wilson's managers they were highly pleased. Watterson says Harvey had nothing to do with the soliciting of funds from weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may saup at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discor-ery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

run, and the time between Oakland to be cut in half, the tide of Daylight's terrific expenditure started to turn. Not that it really did turn, for he promptly went into further investments. Thousands of lots in his residence tracts were sold, and thousands the heavy-hammer thrower at the U. of homes was being built. Factory sites also were selling, and business properties in the heart of Oakland. All this tended to a steady appreciation in the value of Daylight's huge holdings. But, as of old; he had his hunch and was riding it. Already he had begun borrowing from the banks. The maghe sold were turned into more land, into more development; and instead of paying off old loans, he contracted new ones. As he had pyramided in Dawson City, he now pyramided in Oakland, but the did it with the knowledge that it was a stable enterprise rather than a risky placer-min-

Work on Daylight's dock system went on apace; yet it was one of those enterprises that consumed money dreadfully and that could not he accomplished as quickly as a ferry system Not content with manufacturing electricity for his street railways in the old-fashioned way, in power-houses, Daylight organized the Sierra and Salvador Power Company. This immediately assumed large proportions. Crossing the San Joaquin Valley on the way from the mountains, and plunging through the Contra Costa hills, there were many towns, and even a robust city, that could be supplied with power, also with light; and it became a street-and-house-lighting project as well. As soon as the puretion. chase of power sites in the Sierras, was rushed through, the survey parties were out and building operations begun. And so it went. Nevertheless, he took the penitent form, and you put me every precaution in his power there yourself-hard. I've seen a few and had no anxiety about his weatherling it out.

And in the end, when early summer was on, everything began to mend. Came a day when Daylight did the unprecedented. He left the office an hour earlier than usual, and for the reason that for the first time since the ing match just to be back where I was panic there was not an item of work before I quit sleeping under the stars waiting to be done. For once he varied his programme Instead of going directly to his hotel, he started on a round of the bars and cafes, drinking a cocktail here and a cocktail there, and two or three when he encountered men he knew. Again the hands locked. It happened quickly. The offensive attack of Daylight's muscles slipped instantly into defence, and resisting vainly, his hand was forced over and down. Daylight was dazed. It had been no trick The skill was equal, or, if anything, the superior skill had been his. Strength, sheer strength, had done it. He called for the drinks, and, still dazed and pondering, held up his own arm and looked at it as at some new strange thing. He did not know this arm. It certainly was not the arm he had carried around with him all the years. The old arm? Why, it would have been play to turn down that young husky's. But this arm—he continued to look at it with such dubious perplexity as to bring a roar of laughter from the young men.

This laughter aroused him. He joined in it at first, and then his face slowly grew grave. He leaned toward the hammer-thrower.

"Son," he said, "let me whisper a secret. Get out of here and quit drinking before you begin. The young fellow flushed angrily,

CHAPTER XIX.

Daylight awoke with the familiar parched mouth and lips and throat. took a long drink of water from the pitcher beside his bed, and gathered up the train of thought where he had left it the night before. He reviewed the easement of the financial strain. Things were mending at last. While the going was still rough, the greatest dangers were already past.

His mind moved on to the incident at the corner of the bar of the Parthenon, when the young athlete had turned his hand down. He was no longer stunned by the event, but he was shocked and grieved, as only a strong man can be, at this passing of his strength. He had always looked upon this strength of his as permanent, and here, for years, it had been steadily oozing from him. As he had diagnosed it, he had come in from under the stars to roost in the coops of cities. He had almost forgetten how to walk. He had lifted up his feet and been ridden around in automobiles, cabs and carriages, and electric cars. He had not exercised, and he had dry-rotted his muscles with alcohol. And was it worth it? What did all his money mean after all? Dede was right. It could buy him no more than one bed at a time, and at the same time it had made him the abjectest of slaves. It fied him fast. Which was better? he asked himself. All this was Dede's own thought. It was what she had meant when she prayed he would go broke. He held up his offending right arm. It wasn't the same old arm. Of course she could not love that arm and that body as she had loved the strong, clean arm and body of years before. He didn't like that arm and body himself. A young whippersnapper had been able to take liberties with it. It had gone back on him. He sat up suddenly. No. he had gone back on it! He had gone back on himself. He had gone back on Dede. She was right, a thousand times right, and she had sense enough to know it, sense enough to refuse to marry a money-slave with a Whisky-rotted carcass.

He got out of bed and looked at himself in the long mirror on the wardrobe door. He wasn't pretty. The old-time lean cheeks were gone. These were heavy, seeming to bang down by their own weight. He looked for the lines, of cruelty Dede had spoken of, and he found them, and lie found the harshness in the eyes as well, the eyes that were muddy now after all he cocktails of the night before, and of the months and years before. He looked at the clearly defined pouches that showed under his eyes, and they shocked him. He rolled up the sleeve of his pajamas. No wonder the ham mer thrower had put his hand down. Those weren't muscles. A rising tide. of fat had submerged them. He stripped off the pajama coat. Again he was shocked, this time by the bulk of his body. It wasn't pretty. The lean stomach had become a pannch. The rigid muscles of chest and shoulders and abdomen had broken down And this was age. Then there drifted across the field of vision of his mind's eye the old man he had encountered at Glen Ellen, coming up the hillside through the fires of sunset, white-headed and white-bearded, eighty-four, in his hand the pail of foaming milk and in his face all the warm glow and content of the passing summer day. That had been age. "Yes siree, eighty-four, and spryer than most," he could hear the old man say. Next he remembered Ferguson, the little man who had scuttled into the road like a rabbit, the one-time managing editor of a great newspaper, who was content to live in the chaparral along with his spring of mountain. water and his hand reared and manicured fruit trees. Ferguson had solved a problem. A weakling and an alcoholic, he had run away from the doctors and the chicken-coop of a city, and soaked up health like a thirsty sponge. He sat down suddenly on the bed, startled by the greatness of the idea that had come to him. He did not sit long. His mind, working in its customary way, like a steel trap, canvassed the idea in all its bearings. It was big-bigger than anything he had faced before. And he faced it squarely, picked it up in his two hands and turned it over and around and looked as you can notice it. But let me tell him. He chuckled over it, reached his at it. The simplicity of it delighted decision, and began to dress. Midway use the telephone.

Dede was the first he called up. "Don't come to the office this morning," he said. "I'm coming out to see you for a moment." He called up others. He ordered his motor-car. To Jones he gave instructions for the forwarding of Bob and Wolf to Glen Ellen. Hegan he surprised by asking him to look up the deed of the Glen Ellen ranch and make out a new one in Dede Mason's name. "Who?" Hegan demanded. "Dede Mason," Daylight replied imperturbably-"the phone must be indistinct this morning. Decde Masson. Got it?"

Half an hour later he was flying out to Berkeley. And for the first time the big red car halted directly before he house. Dede offered to receive him in the parlor, but he shook his head and nodded toward her rooms. "In there," he said. "No other place would suit." As the door closed, his arms went out and around her. Then he stood with his hands on her shoulders and looking down into her face.

She gave a glad little cry, and he stroyed. You have no right to do it: nestled her in closely. But the next moment she had thrust herself out from him to the old position at arm's his head and smiled tantalizingly.

A couple of months from now, up there in Glen Ellen, you'll wake up some morning and find you've got a perfect stranger in the house with you, and you'll have to get introduced to him all over again. You'll say, Tin Mrs. Harnish, who are you?' And I'H say, 'I'm Elam Harnish's younger brother. I've just arrived from Alaska to attend the funeral? 'What funeral?' you'll say. "But you haven't answered my questions," she reproached him, as she emerged, rosy and radiant, from the embrace, that had accompanied the culmination of his narrative.

"Now fust what do you want know?" he asked.

"I want to know how all this is possible? How you are able to leave whether I hold the paper or somebody your business at a time like this? What you meant by saying that some thing was going to happen quickly?"

"Let's go and get married," he urged, duplicated in his eyes. "I've been work ing like forty horses ever since this blamed panic set in, and all the time some of those ideas you'd given me were getting ready to sprout. Well, they sprouted this morning, that's all, I knew I wanted to ride in the hills with you just about thirty million times more than I wanted to go to the office. And I knew all the time it was impossible. And why? Because of the office. The office wouldn't let me And then I made up my mind that I was to the dividing of the ways. One way led to the office. The other way led to Berkeley. And I took the Berkeley woad. I'm never going to set foot in the office again. That's all gone, finished, over and done with, and I'm letting it slide clean to smash and then some. I'm wiping the slate clean I'm letting it all go smash. When them thirty million dollars stood up to my face and said I couldn't go out with you in the hills today, knew the time had come for me to put my foot down And I'm putting it down! It was startling information. Both ed back. Unwin and Harrison represented big banking corporations, and Daylight knew that if the house of Grimshaw and Hodgkins went it would precipitate a number of failures and start a flurry of serious dimensions. But Daylight smiled, and shook his head.

By this time Hegan had arrived in an automobile. The honk of it came in through the open window, and they all the whimsicality of his utterance saw it stop alongside the big red machine. In the car were Unwin and Harrison, while Jones sat with the chauffeur.

"I'll see Hegan," Daylight told Dede "There's no need for the rest. They can wait in the machine."

"Is he drunk?" Hegan whispered to Dede at the door. She shook her head and showed him

"What have you done to him?" Hegan snarled at Dede.

"Hold on there, Larry." For the first time Daylight's voice was sharp, while all the old lines of cruelty in his face stood forth. ORGANIZATION DAILY

Over 2,000 Agencies in Fight—Open Air Schools Increase 214 Per Cen in Year-Summary for 1905 to 1912,

Nearly 2,000 organizations of various kinds were engaged in the figh against tuberculosis on January 1912, and new agencies have been formed during the past year at the

151 sanatoria, hospitals and camps; 365 dispensaries and clinics; and 91 open air schools. If to these were added 200 state and local boards of icalth and a number of other institutions, such as hospitals for the insane and penal institutions making speciar provision for tuberculosis cases, the otal number of agencies engaged in tuberculosis work would be swelled to

During the year 1911 the greatest percentage of increase among the diferent forms of tuberculesis work was among the open air schools for anaemic and tuberculous children. On January 1, 1911, there were only 29 ppen air schools in operation or proided for in the entire country. On January 1, 1912, there were 91, an inarease of 214 per cent. Sixty-two new schools have been established or provided for this past year. This entire number of open air schools has been established since January 1, 1907.

On January 1, 1905, there were bout 150 different agencies engaged in anti-tuberculosis work, of which number 111 were sanatoria. The increase to over 2,000 agencies has emphasized, the National Association points out, the importance of the ampaign for the prevention of consumption being carried on in all parts of the country.

WHILE PRODUCTS ARE MULTIPLIED

Berlin, Jan. 27.—The trend toward onsolidation in industry and the dislacement of small factories and eslablishments by large ones, which no vhere has been more marked, than ir lermany during the past forty years, s brought out by statistics just pul lished.

These show an actual decrease in the number of plants in some of the leading industries in Germany, whi the aggregate product has been mul tiplied many times. The number of works, producing crude from has de creased since 1873 from 244 to 99, and the number of blast furnaces from 379 to 303, yet the average annual output of each establishment has risen from 9,182 tonse to 149,430 tons, and otal production of pigiron from 2,240, 000 tons to 14,4793,000 tons.

In 1870 the amount of coal produced by the 220 mining companies averaged only 53,693 tons per company, but in 1910 the average was 430,590 each of 218 companies.,

In the beet sugar industry, though he entire production of Germany has risen from 256,412 tons in 1875 to 2,512,928 tons in 1910, the number factories increased only from 333 354, but their average annual output increased almost tenfold, from tons to 7,098 tons. The greatest change occurred in the brewing industry, the 13,030 breweries of 1874 being now represented by only 4,329. Each brewery produced only 199,000 gallons of beer in 1874, but now the 4,329 esgallons. mfwyp gallons.

The regulation of all public clocks by wireless energy is the progressive and ambitious plan just adopted by the secretary of the Imperial Postoffice Department.

According to the project of the inventor, an electrician named Ferdinand Schneider, which has received the support of the military and naval authorties, a central station will be erected near Fulda, centrally situated for the whole empire. It will have a tower 325 feet high, from the top of which the electric waves will be discharged at one minute intervals, affecting the hands of all the clocks in the system.

Three clocks will be employed in the Phone, 1919; Old Phone, 459. central station, switching in interchangeably to guarantee absolute accuracy.

It is planned to have only one receiving clock in each town, other timepieces in the same place being connected with it on the ordinary electric circuit now in use.

Preparatory steps have already been taken toward erecting the central establishment at Fulda. The inventor guarantees that the system will work with absolute accuracy and that the waves cannot be interfered with by controlled from the one station, will be comparatively inexpensive and the He turned to Dede as soon as He form time throughout the country has also, it is understood, appealed to the postoffice authorities.

Democrats Are Reducing Our Taxes

A leading merchant relates, says the Ravenna Democrat, that a lady who visited his store last week afte making the customary semi-annual visit to the court house was so elated over the fact that her taxes were so much lower than last year that she spent all of the difference between the amount of the taxes this year and last year in trading.

And it was no small amount either as the sum was $16. less taxes than for the previous six months is certainly a large sum, and means that her total taxes must have been very large. How ever, a pleasing consideration is that the merchant, who by the way is a leading Republican, really concedes that the low taxes are due to the policy of the present Democratic administration to limit the tax rate to one per cent, and make an equal distribution of the tax burden, which has brought about the placing on the tax duplicate of large sums belonging to railroads and other corporations that have heretofore escaped a large share of taxation.

RAILROAD WRECKS

The tragic deaths of former President J. T. Harahan, of the Illinois Central, and three other high railroad officials, at Kinmundy, Ills., again illustrates the small regard American railroads have for human lives, compared to other nations. The number of passengers killed in this country in 1908 was 301; in 1909 the number was 253, and in 1910 the number rose to 421. These figures are for passengers alone, and do not include trainmen and other employes, among whom the fatalities annually reach into the

HIGH PROTECTION

Whenever an American trust wants the tariff rate raised, it bases its plea on the argument that "American manufacturers cannot compete with the cheap labor of Europe." In eleven months of last year the evnorts of iron and steel products, together with agricultural implements Son are pretty certain not to have any and freight and passenger cars, amounted to nearly $270,000,000 - ar increase of about $54,000,000 over the corresponding period of 1910.

These materials are exported from this country to all parts of the world in the face of the competition England, Belgium, Germany and competitors had the advantage of that 'chean labor" which the trusts and Pa. their Republican friends fear so greatly whenever a proposal is made to lower the tariff, yet the trust's trade in foreign markets is constantly on Against this slaughter of American the increase. PASTURING THE FARM WOODLOT

ment Station, which extended over 30 counties of Ohio, indicate that only about 15 per cent of the native woodlots is reserved from the grazing of livestock, and hence is in a fair state of productiveness. The other 85 per cent contains but few, if any young trees, which, unless livestock is excluded, will not perpetuate themselves, but will become less productive each year, and when the present stand of matured trees is gone, will cease to exist. Investigations further disclose the fact that, on the whole, the woodland pasture is inferior and is valued on an average at not over 50 cents per acre annually Company. No wood was used in its by the owners. Thus the woodlots are not only unproductive as timber producing areas, with a comparatively short period of existence, but are unprofitable as pasture lands as well. In the majority of cases the shade is too great to permit a normal stand Republican politics in this state are but also in the matter of securing of nutritious grass to grow. The Question of Friendship Between Men and Women.

CE collectively, we are in many ways getting a broader outlook on life, since we are becoming more and more enlightened on many subjects, why cannot, we, as a whole, get a better view of the question of friendship between men and women? We have advanced on the question of woman's economic independence of suffrage, of labor. We are even beginning to put war in the category where it belongs, as not really an expression of patriotism, but a survival of the brute instincts. We are far ahead in scores of ways of what we were one hundred years ago. But when it comes to the question of the relations of men and women, we are still in the Dark Ages.

Let a married man or woman show any signs of friendship for : member of the other sex, either married or single, and immediately the majority of us, lift the eyebrows, shrug the shoulders, and the tongue of gossip begins to wag. Many of us seem to think that it is impossible for a married man to enjoy the companionship of a married or single woman in a purely friendly fashion; or that a married woman can find pleasure in association with a man, unless some emotion deeper than friendship is

This is not theory. Almost every one knows in his circle of acquaint ances some such cases, and of the gossip that followed:

A-prominent business man and philanthropist, known the country over for his high standing in financial circles, as well as for his philanthropic work, has been gossiped about interminably, in fact, almost slandered, because of his friendship for a young girl. The girl is rather exceptiona' mentally, and this man finds pleasure in her companionship. There is nothing but a sincere friendship between them. Yet because he is married the world seems to think such friendship should not be

A prominent clergyman has been criticised bitterly by friends, and members of his congregation, because of what seems favors he has showered upon a trained nurse, who has been a member of his nousehold for several years taking care of an invalid daughter. He looks upon this nurse almost as one of his family, and has a real regard for her. But despite his hitherto irreproachable character, many look upon his attitude toward he: as wrong; and seem to think he can have no feeling for her but what is reflection upon his wife.

The case of Madame Curie and her fellow-worker is another; though at this distance and with the many conflicting reports, it is difficult to tell just how matters stand. But abstractly, is it not possible for a woman of her liberal education and scientific attainments to find pleasure in the triendship of a man working in the same field of research, without there being anything in the feeling to justify a wife's jealousy? Surely, it is possible. It is only the narrow, suspicious, and really unworthy spirit who misconstrues such a friendship.

Can we not as women, get beyond this narrow spirit? Can we no refrain from judging and gossiping and criticising, when we see such an intimacy between a man and a woman? Can we not be big enough t believe that a pure friendship, a simple pleasure in each other's society. I possible, without any deeper emotion being stirred, even though one of the other may be married?

This is not meant to condone unfaithfulness, or to encourage unfaithtulness, to marriage vows. Nor is it meant to infer that there is no such thing; for we all know that there is only too much of the coveting of thy neighbor's wife. But it is meant that we should not immediately put a friendship between a man and a woman into this class, nor think that all friendships between married men and women are of this kind and that

Let us refrain from criticising and ludging. Let us be big enough to admit that such friendships are possible. Let us advance in this matter as we have in many others, into a larger and kindlier consideration of each

Story — Witch's Magic

The Spiteful Old Spectacles

The Fairy Put on the Blue Spectacles

EAR, dear, Jack!" exclaimed daddy. "I think you and Evelyn must have put on blue spectacles this morning." Things had not gone right for the children, and it was a doleful tale they had to tell their father when he got home from business that evening.

"What are blue spectacles?" asked Jack. "Well, I'll tell you a story." began daddy. "Once there was a little fairy that wandered away off from her own part of fairyland, and presently she came to the castle of a big witch. "Well, when this fairy—her name was Azalea—came up to the witch's castle she was quite tired. The old witch was peeking out of her window, as she always was, watching the neighbors or on the lookout for travelers, and when she saw little Azalea sitting on the hitching block-the block. I mean, where the old witch hitched her broomstick when she was going out for a ride-she went right down and asked the fairy to come in and have a cup of tea with her. "Fairy Azalea didn't drink tea. Nectar and dewdrops, you know, are the favorite fairy drinks. The old witch was so pressing in her invitation, however, that Azalea thought she would go in and rest.

"The witch brought out all her trinkets and showed them to the fairy. There were many wonderful things, but what interested the fairy most was a pair of spectacles. 'My dear, whoever wears those glasses will be able to see through a stone wall,' said the witch.

"'How very nice!' cried the fairy. There are no stone walls in fairyland, and so the witch felt quite safe in telling this horrible, naughty fib. "'You must let me make you a present of those,' said the old witch, and she clapped the specs on Azalea's nose. "Why, how strange things look!" cried the fairy, staring very hard through the glasses. Everything looked so gloomy and crooked that the fairy was not sure she wished to wear the specs.

"Well, Fairy Azalea wore the glasses home to fairyland. She had been one of the brightest and sunniest elves in fairyland, but after she got those spectacles she never seemed to see good in anything.

"'What ails the sprite?' the queen wondered. Her majesty called Azalea before her. Then it didn't take the fairy queen long to find out about the spectacles. My, but you should have seen her snatch them off and throw them over her shoulder! I believe they must have fallen somewhere over in the world of real folks, for now and then some little girl or boy seems to be fering with typhoid fever and now wearing something very much like them."

LAST NIGHT'S PLAY.

A bright and interesting comedy has been evolved from a plot basis, which is not altogether new, in "The Real Thing." Catherine Chisholm Cushing has taken the story of the frumpy wife and the "fast losing interest husband" and dressed it up with a bright dialogue, witty epigrams and given to pled with the announcement of so dis-Henrietta Crosman a very volatile, capricious and happy character.

Of Miss Crosman it is hardly neces sary to make comment. She has been seen here several times, and her clever work as a comedienne, has won her much much favor, but probably not as much as she might had she been equipped with a better vehicle for starring purposes. Miss Crosman has been unfortunate in her selection of plays, but last night's came nearer to being the bright and anappy piece necessary to the efforts of the star than any she has chosen of late. As the widow who rejuvenates the wife she is withall loving and the record everywhere as being the delightful.

And a peculiar incident is that the roles the two plays verging very near the it one of the best seen at the Orpheum same line. In the part of Harry Miller as in that of Dick Grayson, the husband tires of his wife's slavery to the kitchen and her household duties and strays from her path

Two of the most -delightful stage children ever seen here were in "The Real Thing." Audrey Ridgwell as Dorothy, and Mac Macomber as Jack, were perfect little actors and were as much at ease in their stage romps as they might have been in their home games. Florence Short was clever as the understudy, and Albert Brown played the role of Tom Bradley splendidly, never overlooking any opportunity offered by

Press Agent Says:

THOMAS JEFFERSON AS "RIP-VAN WINKLE," TONIGHT.

The announcement that Thomas Jefferson is to be seen at the Auditorium tonight in "Rip Van Winkle" will 12call to mind the excellent impression made by this actor in this same delightful character on previous visits to the city. · ·

There is nothing even in the classic so steadily and so strongly to the theatre-going public as has this story of the drunken vagabond of the Catskills. In tragedy, gentile comedy, farce, burlusque or comic opera there has been no production that ever could hold a candle to the wonderful record which "Rip Van Winkle" has enjoyed. And more remarkable still. that the play will endure for many years to come, in Thomas Jefferson's conception. It is a marvelous resurrection from Washington Irving's pages of the hero of the village of Falling Water, a masterpiece of histronism as splended and perfect in its way as the best that any of the old masters ever put on canvas. It is as popular with the public today as it was four decades ago and those theatregoers count themselves lucky who are able to renew their acquaintance with it every few seasons.

AUDITORIUM SUNDAY PICTURES

Sunday pictures at the beautiful Auditorium has caught the popular fancy and are autracting crowded houses. Two first class new machines have been installed and two expert operators handle them doing away with all thresome waits. Five of the best reels are given for five cents and the Newark public are not slow in showing their appreciation of such liberal management.

"THE CONFESSION." "The Confession" by James Halleck

Reid, will be presented at the Auditorium soon. THE ORPHEUM. Another big musical treat is in store for the many patrons of the cozy Arcade theatre the first three days of next week. This is none other than the five musical MacLarens, the classy act all have been looking for. It is composed of four pretty girls and one gentleman and every one an artist. They are featuring the little girl wonder with the drums, and she is breaking best in her line, and when her age is considered, she is truly a wonder. OPPOSED TO RENOMINATION OF PRES. TAFT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27-The weakness of President Taft, and his nability to hold the Republican vote of New York, even if nominated, is being made clearer each day by the New York Piess (Republican) of New York, which is conducting a poll of Its readers. In discussing the opinions of those polled, as expressed in letters received in yesterday's mall, the Press says:

"And of all the answers received in voters canvassed only 21 1-3 per cent desired the nomination of Mr. Taft. But, of much greater significance, of all the answers received in that mail 19 per cent declared that they would not vote for Mr. Taft if he were nom-

"As our carnest wish is to be perfectly frank and fair in this whole discussion, simply seeking to the best of our ability to learn what Republican nomince could expect to poll his party vote, we state here that the percentage of Republican voters declaring in that one mail they would not vote for Mr. Taft if he were nominated is somewhat larger than usual in the canvass we are conducting. However, from the very beginning the percentage of promised defections has always been alarmingly heavy.

"Now, when only a small proportion of the Republican voters ask for the nomination of Mr. Tast, and when a very heavy percentage declared it will not vote for him if he is nominated, how could we, however, much we favor Mr. Taft, and how could anybody in reason declare that Mr. Taft ought to be nominated anyhow, no matter how the voters of the party feel and no matter what they would do at the polls?"

HOW PROTECTION PROTECTS THE WORKINGMAN

Washington, Jan. 27. - Here is some more evidence of how "protection" does not protect the workngman.

The following is an extract from an appeal sent by the 15,000 men, women and children striking textile workers at Lawrence, Mass., to Wm. M. Wood, president of the Woolen Trust:

"We are of the opinion that you have had ample time to consider the demands of, the men, women and children who have made the Americhiney has been improved, the workers turn off more and more work. but they are not paid accordingly even though the price of food, cloth-ing and shelter has in many cases increased 50 and even 100 per cent within the last few years.

"We, the committee, are willing to meet the officials of the company at any time and submit the grievances of the strikers. So if you believe in a square deal, you will not refuse to meet with us, but will come forward at once and try to bring the trouble to a final conclusion. You must bear in mind the fact that these men, women and children have not gone on strike for light or transient causes, but because they could no longer bear up under the burdens laid upon shoulders. The American Woolen Company has within the last few years built several mills, which are paid for, according to your own figures, and the company has, even in the worst of times managed to pay dividends:

The workers are of the opinion that the only competition left is the struggie among themselves for a miserable job at $6, $7 or $8 a week.'

DISCUSSED BY A UNIVERSITY MAN

(Ohio State Journal.) By F. S. Jacoby.

A great deal has been written about coultry farming and scientific poulting raising, but the poultry that is least talked about is the 50-cent hen that has her home on the average Ohio farm. The 50 cent hen may not brag of fine feathers of an attractive home. of this number probably not more than

The farm hen has not made an enviable record in egg production, but it has not been entuely her fault. In many cases she has not been fed properly or given a comfortable house, and a lean, shivening hen can not be capected to shell out eggs. The time is coming soon when the farmer will appreciate what source of profit his hens may be and then the Ohio hen will come into her own

Ohio lacks nothing to make farm poultry profitable. The price of glain be that the farmers of lowa realize the making proposition and are determined to supply the united States, with their product. If lower can produce poults and eggs and ship the products 1000 miles to market the Ohio farmer nearby. Ohio is surrounded with good mar kets On the north are Toledo and Cleveland, eastward hes Pittsburg, Cincinnati is located in the south, while Columbus, Dayton and Springfield are central markets. The plaint of the armer can not be the lack of marks place, for Ohio is plentifully supplied. The reason why more and better poultry is not kept in Ohio is because

It is to bely the farmers, and the tuture farmers of Ohio, to solve their poultry troubles that a poultry plant is being established at the Ohio State University At present 60 students of the winter course in agriculture are These men desire a working knowledge of poultry so that the farm flock can be put upon the same basis as the cattle and the sheep.

The tendency at the present time is for the farmer to keep a larger flock than he would have thought practical 10 years ago. The method of housing flocks of over 200 in a single pen, the system of leeding these flocks so that it takes no longer than the feeding of a dozen cows, and the methods of hatching and rearing chicks without constant attention, are a few of the things that will make farm poultry more attractive and more profitable or Ohio faims

Recently a hen has been bred at Cortell University that has laid 257 eggs in a year. This hen was not the result of chance, or a freak of nature. for in the same class with her are 15 others that laid on an average 236 eggs each.

Another pen averaged over 180 eggs each. These hens were carefully bred and selected. Professor Rice, under whose direction they were bred, states that five things were responsible for the excellent showing. First, a good laying strain; second, careful selection of breeders for constitutional vigon, third, a suitable ration; fourth, freshair house conditions, and fifth, care and skill in feeding and management. Not one of these conditions is beyond the Ohio hen should lay at least 120 Be sure to remember that the eggs and vield a profit of $1.50. The Eczema from Top of Head to Waist. Suffered Untold Agony and Pain-Doctors Said It Could Not Be Cured. Set of Cuticura Remedies Successful When All Else Had Failed.

"Some time ago I was taken with corema from the top of my head to my waist. It began with scales on my body. I suffered intold itching and burning, and could not sleep. I was greatly distigured with scales and crusts. My ears looked as if they had been most cut off with a razor, and my neck was perfectly raw. I suffered untold agony and pain. I tried two doctors who said I had eczema in its fullest stage, and that it could not be cured. I then tried other remedies to no avail. At last, I tried a set of the genuine Cuticura Remedies, which cured me. Cuticura Remedies cured me of eczema when all else had failed, therefore I cannot praise them too highly.

"I suffered with eczema about ten months. but am now entirely cured, and I believe Cuticura Remedies are the best skin cura there is " (Signed) Miss Mattle J. Shaffer, R. F. D. 1, Box 8, Dancy, Miss., Oct. 27, 1910. "I had suffered from eczema about four years when boils began to break out on different parts of my body. It started with a fine red rash. My back was affected first, when it also spread over my face. The tiching was almost unbearable at times. I tried different soaps and salves, but nothing seemed to help me until I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One box of them cured me entirely. I recommended them to my lister for her baby who was troubled with tooth eczema, and they completely cured her baby." (Signed) Mrs. F. I., Marberger, Drehersville, Pa., Sept. 6, 1910.

"From your druggist get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. Smaller doses to children according to age." This is the best formula known to science. There are many cheaper preparations of large quantity, but it don't pay to experiment with a bad cold. Be sure to get only the genuine (Globe) Concentrated Pine Each half cunce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your druggist does not have it in stock he will get it quickly from his wholesale house. This has been published here every winter for six years and thousands of families know its value.

IN SPITE OF FATHER.

Two years ago, a young man from northern Ohio, came to the Ohio State University to take a short course in dairying. He was the son of a well to do dairy farmer who had made his money not so much progressive methods as by being "close." The father was not in sympathy with the "new fangled ideas about farming" as he called them, consequently he did little to encourage his son in his search for an agricultural education. However, the young man came to the university and received many new impressions and ideas about agriculture. That summer the father decided to go to California to visit his daughter and he turned his This is a grate day for the race, my; Wat race, sed ma, without looking farm over to his son while he was cuzzin Artie sed to me today, and I up frum her book, and I sed. JOHN CHIRILO, SHOT BY FELLOW COUNTRYMAN, DIED AT SANITARIUM FRIDAY EVE.

31 years, who was shot last Monday warded to his people. night by Todor Dabro, died at 6:45 clock Friday evening of peritonitis, caused by a gunshot wound in the abdomen. His death was not unexpected, a sudden change for the worse being noted about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He continued to grow rapidly worse until his death at the hour mentioned.

Coroner Wiyiarch and the police depertment were notified of the death and the coroner ordered the body removed to Criss Bros., & Jones morgae where an autopsy was held later in the evening.

Coroner Wiyiarch superintended the autopsy and was assisted by Drs. Dillon and Barnes. The work was not completed Friday night and the doctors again opened the body at the morgue Saturday morning.

Chirilo, it will be remembered was shot by Dabro, a fellow countryman who operates a boarding house at 409 Seroco avenue. The police claim that the shooting followed a quarrel between Dabro and Chirilo in which the latter was ordered from the place. When he refused Dabro is said to have drawn a revolver and fired point blank at Chirilo.
